- $ Start a pool with your friends to buy lottery tickets. The more tickets you buy, the greater your chances of winning. If you buy all of the tickets you'll have a 100% chance of winning!
- $ Consolidate your payments into one easy handgun purchase. Rob.
- $ Invent a time machine. Travel back to 1999 and become the CEO and founder of eNursingHome.com, an online retailer of the full spectrum of geriatric products. Convince investors that aging baby boomers will flock to your website. Watch your stock price soar as you become a multimillionaire. Upon considering your prospects, you realize that although you haven't sold a single product, your business model is so brilliant that you have to survive the impending dot-com bust, right? Wrong. You lose everything. I guess this isn't really a get-out-of-debt scheme, actually. My bad.
- $ Send out a mass email to all Nigerian citizens, explaining that you need their help to transfer funds from your savings account to your checking account, and asking for their account information. It seems that the political chaos caused by the upcoming presidential election has disrupted financial transactions in the United States, and you need the security and legitimacy of a Nigerian bank account.
- $ Auction off your debt on eBay. Who's going to notice that minus sign?
- $ Assure the large, faceless collection agencies that you gave them the money last night when they were stoned. You don't know what they did with it. You suggest they check the empty Domino's boxes.
- $ Beg for money from people with huge disposable incomes, like college students. Keep in mind that the begging scene can be quite competitive. You may want to work on cultivating a special skill to give you an edge, like reciting classic lines from Good Times or halfheartedly selling turnips.
- $ Your friend has a Lexmark 3000, and you found a JPEG of the five-dollar bill on a warez site hosted in the former Soviet Union. Need I say more?
- $ Sell your children into indentured servitude, white slavery, and/or the Thai sex trade. If you can't bear to part with your beloved children, just sell some of their organs on the black market. They shouldn't be hogging all those kidneys, anyway.
- $ 200,000 Keystone Lights x 5¢ refund per can = a debt-free you!
- $ Assemble representatives from all of the collection agencies in the auditorium of the local high school, and give a clumsy yet heartwarming speech about how you tried your hardest to pay them back, but you just can't do it. Ever. After a moment of stunned silence, one of the suits will start the slow clap. Gradually everyone will break into thunderous applause, showing they've forgiven your debts. Roll credits.
